

DO YOU OWN THIS CARD ALREADY?

YES

From 01 January 2019 you can no longer renew this card in its current format. You will need to meet the new criteria, as shown below.

Do I need to act now - will I lose my card after 01 January?

No - your existing card is still valid until its expiry date. You only need to meet these requirements when you renew your card - not immediately after 01 January 2019. For instance, if your card expires on 15 March 2020, you will not need to act until then and your current card is valid until this date.

NO

Since 01 August 2018 new qualification requirements have been in effect for all new applications for this card.

What are the new requirements?

You must meet the criteria for one of two routes, depending on your existing qualifications:

Route 1: Do you already have a JIB approved electrical theory qualification?

If you already have a JIB-approved electrical theory qualification such as C&G 2365, 2330 or 2360 (or EAL equivalents) this will be accepted for your Labourer card. A full list of approved qualifications is available via www.ecscard.org.uk/labourer.

You will also need to pass the ECS Health, Safety & Environmental Assessment.

Route 2: If you don't hold a JIB-approved theory qualification...

If you don't hold a JIB-approved electrical theory qualification, you'll need the following:

1. Successful completion of ONE of the following Health & Safety courses:

- CCNSG Safety Passport - National Course or Renewal Course
- Safety Pass Alliance (SPA) Core H&S Course
- IOSH Working Safely (IOSH Approved Centre Classroom invigilated exam only - not online)

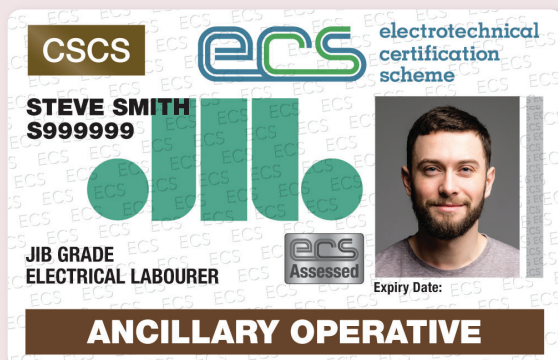

2. You only need to sit a separate ECS Health, Safety & Environmental Assessment if you passed any of the above courses over three years ago.

If you have taken the courses listed in item 1 within the last three years, you do not have to sit the separate ECS HS&E Assessment.

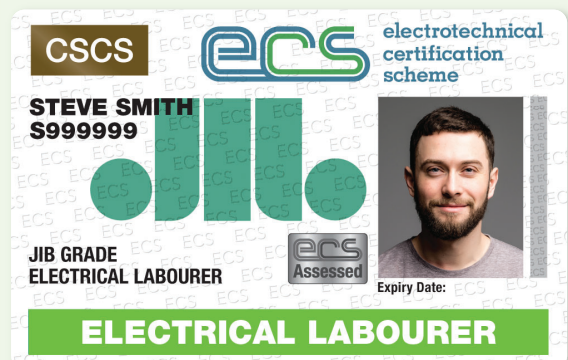

3. Proof of employment in the electrical industry

This needs to be in the form of a written reference from your employer to confirm you are employed by that company. If you normally work for an employment business or labour agency you should obtain a signed letter from the business to confirm your dates of engagement as an Electrical Labourer.
